

It's a Small World

at
John McMillan Preschool

Very early on, children become aware of and intrigued by the differences in the way people look and behave. Learning to value cultural diversity encourages children to see those differences as common and positive.

As children learn to understand and respect similarities and differences, they realize that they are wonderfully unique among many other wonderfully unique people on this earth – and God made us all to be just that way.

So grab your passport, and...

- learn about and experience places around our world through literature, art, music, food and celebrations!
- learn to respect and celebrate the differences in all people
- learn how differences make our world a better place
